Notes: The Dragon class carrier/battleship is the culmination of several races and cultures technology that enable the ship to come together under such unusual circumstances. Its enormous size has more to do with accommodating all of the advanced technology than anything else. Its sheer size also means it can be used as a mobile base of operations and command vessel for allied forces, and its ability to not only repair itself, but other starships as well makes it doubly versatile. While not designed to compete with Sovereign and Neutron Star, it is meant to fill the gap between capital and super capital class vessels.
